

Youth Championships and Commonwealth Youth Games, Sachin announced his arrival on the senior stage by winning gold in the men's 60kg category at the 2025 World Boxing Cup Finals.

His victory over Paris Olympic silver medallist Munarbek Seitbek Uulu of Kyrgyzstan in the final, achieved through a commanding 5-0 unanimous decision, demonstrated that he possesses the speed, composure and technical quality to compete with the world's elite.

In Glasgow, Sachin could face stiff competition from England's William Hewitt and Canada's Keoma-Ali Al-Ahmadi, both of whom have impressed on the World Boxing circuit and are among the leading contenders in the men's 60kg category.

In weightlifting, all eyes will once again be on Mirabai. The Indian superstar is in excellent form and will be aiming to complete a historic hat-trick of Commonwealth Games gold medals and a fourth overall.

But India's excellence extends well beyond one champion.

Bindyarani Devi (58kg), Nirupama Devi Seram (63kg) and Gyaneshwari Yadav (53kg) represent the next generation of Indian lifters eager to climb the podium and challenge for gold.

For India, boxing and weightlifting have repeatedly delivered when medals were needed most. Glasgow presents another opportunity for the two disciplines to power the country's medal charge, which might well shape its overall campaign.

At the 2022 Birmingham Games, in addition to the Indian boxers' medal haul, the weightlifters bagged 10. Anything significantly less this time will be a disappointment.

In other able-bodied sports such as judo, artistic gymnastics, lawn bowls, swimming and track cycling, India's medal prospects appear considerably slimmer.
