Star's contrast: While Hasan Mahmud (right) was the wrecker-in-chief in Bangladesh's famous victory in the first Test against Australia in Darwin, it was the seasoned campaigner Mitchell Starc (left) who destroyed the opponent with a 10-wicket match haul in the second Test in Mackay. AFP

Drama aplenty as Aus-Ban Test series ends in 1-1 draw

1 Bangladesh dominated the series-opener, bowling Australia out for 284 and chasing down 57 to win on the fourth day.

Bangladesh's tour of Australia produced a historic two-Test series that ended 1-1, with the visitor securing a stunning nine-wicket victory in Darwin before Australia hit back in Mackay. Bangladesh dominated the series-opener, bowling Australia out for 284 and chasing down 57 to win on the fourth day. Hasan Mahmud starred with a match haul of nine for 111, while Mominul Haque struck the winning runs off Beau Webster to seal Bangladesh's first Test victory in Australia. It was the country's first Test win there after a 2-0 defeat in 2003. Australia responded emphatically in the second Test, winning by an innings and 51 runs. Mitchell Starc was the destroyer-in-chief, taking 10-51, including 6-12 in Bangladesh's first innings as the visitor was dismissed for 64. Bangladesh was then bowled out for 95 in its second innings, with Starc taking four more wickets. The Mackay Test lasted just 125 overs, making it the fourth-shortest completed Test in history.
