Former England bowler Kate Cross has announced she will retire from cricket at the end of the summer. The 34-year-old played 102 internationals for England between 2013 and 2025, having made her debut aged 22 in a T20 against West Indies. Cross was part of England's Ashes-winning side in 2013-14, its most recent Women's Ashes triumph. She continued playing domestic cricket after losing her England contract last year, with her final international appearance coming in an ODI against India last July. Cross finishes her career with 25 Test wickets, 101 in ODIs and 14 in T20Is.

Joe Root marked his return as permanent England captain with an innings-and-103-run victory over Pakistan at Headingley, wrapping up the first Test before tea on day three. After being bowled out for 171 in 48.1 overs on the opening day, Pakistan was dismissed for 135 in 37.3 overs in its second innings after England made 409. Jofra Archer, much improved after a rusty first innings, struck twice early to reduce Pakistan to 13-2. Josh Tongue then took three wickets for 43 after lunch, including Shan Masood for 29, to extinguish any hope of Pakistan reaching day four. The second and third Tests will be played at Lord's and Edgbaston respectively.

Trent Rockets (above) underlined its status as title favourite by winning the Women's Hundred final at Lord's. After winning seven of its eight league games, Rockets bowled out Sunrisers Leeds for just 91 before chasing down the target with 46 balls to spare to claim their first title.

Rockets by five wickets and secure its maiden Hundred title. Chasing 159, Super Giants needed only three runs from the final nine balls before Mohammad Amir dismissed Heinrich Klaasen and Michael Bracewell, while Ben Sanderson bowled two dot balls to leave the equation at three from three. Liam Dawson held his nerve, hitting the winning runs with a six over mid-wicket to seal victory with two balls remaining.
