

» WORLD VIEW OF THE FORTNIGHT

« My coach would not be too happy with the race. Some of the hurdles were not really good. But hey, I won this Diamond League race, so I cannot complain. — World record holder Ja'Kobe Tharp after winning the 110m hurdles at the Silesia Diamond League »

« When I attempt a world record, it's just like the cherry on top. I don't really even get that nervous. It's more like, I've won the competition, and whatever happens after that is really nice. — Two-time reigning Olympic champion Swedish pole vaulter Armand Duplantis »

26.56s

Sara Curtis broke the women's 50m backstroke world record for the second time in two days at the European swimming championships in Paris. The 19-year-old Italian clocked 26.56s to win gold in the final, just one day after lowering the mark with 26.63s in the semifinal to better Australian Kaylee McKeown's record from three years ago by 0.23s. She added this world record to the short-course European record she set in the event in Poland last year.

Carlos Alcaraz will be teaming up with Serena Williams for the mixed doubles event at the 2026 U.S. Open. Serena, the most successful women's tennis player in history and a 23-time Grand Slam singles winner, will be making her first appearance at the U.S. Open in nearly four years. She has also won the U.S. Open a record six times, while Alcaraz has won the American Grand Slam twice. Serena had won the U.S. mixed doubles title in 1998, partnering Max Mirnyi.

WINNING WAYS

Amy Hunt won a record fourth gold medal in a single edition of the European Athletics Championships when Britain bagged the mixed 4x100 relay. She had already won the 100m and 200m individual titles and added a third gold in the women's 4x100 relay. The mixed 4x100 relay team of Jeremiah Azu, Dina Asher-Smith, Zhanel Hughes and Hunt won in 39.97 seconds on their debut at the European Championships. REUTERS
