

New beginnings: Real Madrid began its second Jose Mourinho era with a last-gasp win over Espanyol. Below: Spanish World Cup star Ferran Torres marked his PSG debut with a brace.

REUTERS

Barcelona, which thrashed Elche 5-0 to begin its title defence. Club captain Raphinha and youngster Fermin Lopez grabbed a brace each while Karim Adeyemi also scored to complete a dream debut.

For Real, meanwhile, it was not as smooth a start as returning manager Jose Mourinho would have hoped. Jude Bellingham set the ball rolling with a ninth-minute header against Espanyol, but Alex Calatrava equalised on the half-hour mark to frustrate the Los Blancos. They had to wait until the 90th minute to retake their lead, with new signing Carlos Espi firing in from close range to set up a dramatic finish.

Atletico Madrid, despite being eligible to delay its start, could not due to its stadium being booked for Canadian artist The Weeknd's concerts in late August. Diego Simeone's side still managed to kick off on a positive note with a win over Malaga, with new recruit Lee Kang-in debuting as a substitute before scoring his side's opening goal, while Alex Baena grabbed a second.

Villarreal proved to be a much tougher opponent in the next game. But the Atletico head coach will have his son, Giuliano Simeone, to thank for grabbing a late equaliser and making it 2-2 after two penalties and a red card to Robin Le Normand gave the opposition the advantage.

Serie A

Italian champion Inter Milan has been quite busy in the summer transfer window, dipping into England to bring in the likes of John Stones, Djed Spence and Curtis Jones among others, making clear its intentions to stay at the top.

The ambition was evident in its league opener against Monza, where Inter scored four times while the opposition could reply with just one. Hakan Calhanoglu set the ball rolling for Cristian Chivu's side before Piotr