AMAN SEHRAWAT

Aman Sehrawat enters the Asian Games as India's only Olympic medallist, but the 57kg field in Nagoya means his Paris bronze will offer little protection. The category is perhaps one of the most stacked at the Asian Games, with two of the four medallists from last year's World Championships turning up.

North Korea's Chong Song Han, who upset the field to win gold at last year's World Championships, will look to add a continental gold as well. Uzbekistan's Gulomjon Abdullaev, who won bronze at last year's Worlds and, like Aman, has a bronze from the Paris Games, is here as well. Iran's Ali Momeni will also be looking to get on the podium, while a real wildcard could be 20-year-old Yamato Ogawa of Japan, who won bronze at the Junior World Championships earlier this year.

The 23-year-old Aman (in pic, blue), a former Asian champion, has a silver from the Asian Championships, albeit at 61kg. He has, however, already shown that he can handle the pressure of major tournaments. But he will have to be at his best to navigate a tough field in Nagoya.
