

Trailblazer: Gulveer Singh blazed to silver in the men's 10,000m at the Glasgow Games, becoming the first Indian man to win a medal in the event in the Games' history with a time of 27:49.78. AP

» COVER PACKAGE COMMONWEALTH GAMES

A haul of promise

Ten medals, won across a wider range of events and by a broader group of athletes, made this a Commonwealth Games campaign that promised more than the medal table revealed.

Jonathan Selvaraj
jonathan.selvaraj@thehindu.co.in Tejaswin Shankar's heroic decathlon bronze, Sarvesh Kushare's ground-breaking high jump silver and Gulveer Singh's historic medals in the 5000m and 10,000m were the stand-out performances in an overall strong showing for Indian track and field at the 2026 Commonwealth Games.

India finished the athletics competition in Glasgow with five silver and five bronze medals. On a conventional medal table, that would represent its lowest finish in two decades, largely because there was no gold. But the absence of a gold medal disguises the strength of the overall performance. In terms of the number of medals won, Glasgow produced India's second-best haul in Commonwealth Games history, behind only the 12 medals won at home in New Delhi in 2010. It was also an improvement on the eight medals won at Birmingham four years ago.

The context makes the achievement even more striking. India had fielded 90 athletes across