

How a simple exchange with Sheetal Devi put Payal Nag on course to become the world's first limbless archer

Competing in only her second international event, Payal Nag beat World Champion Sheetal in the compound women's open final of the World Archery Para Series event in Bangkok.

Nihit Sachdeva
nihit.s@thehindu.co.in “Didi, mujhe bhi archery karni hai (Sister, I too want to do archery),” the girl said.

“Theek hai. Aa jao (Okay, come),” replied Sheetal Devi, the Asian Games gold medallist.
It was a simple exchange between two teenage girls over a video call in 2023.

On April 4, that girl — competing in only her second international event — beat World Champion Sheetal in the compound women's open final of the World Archery Para Series event in Bangkok.

Her name — Payal Nag.

But her story doesn't start with that brief conversation with Sheetal.

