

Despite registering 13 shots, the Catalan club managed only three on target, with Araujo's effort making the difference.

Real Madrid prevailed in the derby against Atletico Madrid, powered by a Vinícius Junior brace and a Federico Valverde strike. Ademola Lookman and Nahuel Molina scored for Atlético. However, Valverde's late dismissal meant Real finished the match with 10 men. Villarreal continued its steady run with a 3-1 win over Real Sociedad, while Athletic Bilbao edged past Real Betis 2-1.

After gameweek 29, Barcelona (73) remains top, followed by Real Madrid (69), Villarreal (58) and Atlético Madrid (57).

Bundesliga

Bayern Munich took another step towards a record-extending 35th Bundesliga title with a commanding 4-0 win over Union Berlin. It has now scored 97 league goals, closing in on its club record from the 1971-72 season. Harry Kane added to his tally, taking it to 31 league goals. Robert Lewandowski's record of 41 remains within reach, with seven games still to play. Elsewhere, RB Leipzig thrashed Hoffenheim 5-0, Borussia Dortmund edged Hamburg 3-2, and Bayer Leverkusen was held to a 3-3 draw by Heidenheim. After gameweek 27, Bayern leads with 70 points, nine clear of Dortmund. RB Leipzig, Stuttgart and Hoffenheim (all on 50) round out the top five, while Leverkusen (46) sits sixth.

Serie A

Inter Milan stumbled and added pressure on itself in the title race after being held to a 1-1 draw by relegation-battling Fiorentina.

Inter was quick off the blocks, with Pio Esposito heading home just 39 seconds into the match. However, the team failed to find any spark thereafter, and Fiorentina grabbed the equaliser with Cher Ndour putting the ball into an empty net after Yann Sommer failed to parry it away.

Another early goal helped defending champion Napoli earn a scrappy win over Cagliari, with Scott McTominay grabbing his seventh goal of the league campaign.

Streak of shocks:

Tottenham Hotspur endured a chastening 3-0 home loss to Nottingham Forest.

Facing page: Harry Maguire (right) celebrates Manchester United's second goal, an own goal by Bournemouth's James Hill, minutes before being sent off. REUTERS & AFP

Title challenger AC Milan too did its part with a comprehensive 3-2 win against Torino, which threatened a late comeback.

With eight games remaining, Inter, with 69 points, enjoys a six-point lead over its city rival in second, while Napoli is third with 62.

Ligue 1

Paris Saint-Germain stepped up its pursuit of a 14th league title as it dispatched OGC Nice 4-0 to regain the top spot. Nuno Mendes converted from the spot late in the first half and set up Desire Doue early