UNFINISHED BUSINESS BEFORE THE SWITCH

Tokyo Olympic silver medallist Mirabai Chanu will move to the 53kg category at this year's Asian Games, but first wants to tick off a 90kg snatch and a 120kg clean and jerk.

She might be India's greatest-ever weightlifter, but Mirabai Chanu doesn't demand any special favours at the end of a morning training session at the Weightlifting Warriors gym in Modinagar, just outside New Delhi. Having hoisted hundreds of kilos of iron weights, several tonnes in total, during an hour-and-a-half session, overhead, the Olympic medallist now pulls the same weights off her barbell and back onto the racks.

But where most of the other elite international weightlifters at this gym, operated by national coach Vijay Sharma, stop at this point, Mirabai isn't done after the last plate is put away. She
