

» WORLD VIEW OF THE FORTNIGHT

« I'm progressing, which is nice. I'm getting there and getting stronger.

— Tiger Woods, as he continues his recovery from a torn Achilles suffered in March 2025 and a seventh back surgery in October »

« Yeah, let's do that. I feel like I would probably have more Grand Slams.

Physically, I'm really strong, and I'm pretty confident that my body can handle that.

—World No. 1 Aryna Sabalenka voiced her support for the proposal to make women's matches best-of-five sets from the quarterfinals onwards at Grand Slam events »

2

Two-time Olympic medallist and former world champion sprinter Fred Kerley of the USA has been suspended for two years after missing three out-of-competition drug tests within a 12-month period, the Athletics Integrity Unit (AIU) announced. The AIU said Kerley's missed tests qualify as whereabouts failures under the World Anti-Doping Code, which requires athletes in a registered testing pool to provide daily location details so they can be tested without notice.

SILVER LINING

Lakshya Sen returned with a silver medal from the 2026 All England Open after the 24-year-old went down 21-15, 22-20 to Chinese Taipei's Lin Chun-Yi in the men's singles final in Birmingham. The Indian had beaten Shi Yu Qi, Angus Ng Ka Long, Li Shi Feng and Victor Lai en route to the summit clash. GETTY IMAGES