

Last gasp: Wolverhampton Wanderers stunned Liverpool with a 2-1 victory, with Andre scoring in added time to secure all three points.
AP

the game into extra time. However, the one-man disadvantage soon caught up with the Italian giant as Victor Osimhen and Baris Alper Yilmaz netted in either half to seal Galatasaray's spot in the next stage.

Joining it will be Bayer Leverkusen, Newcastle United and Atletico Madrid, who eased past Olympiacos, Qarabag FK and Club Brugge, respectively. Additionally, defending champion Paris Saint-Germain survived a spirited showing from Monaco to squeeze into the round of 16 with a 5-4 aggregate win.

On the other hand, giants Inter Milan and Borussia Dortmund saw their respective European campaigns come to an end. Inter, which currently leads the Italian top flight, succumbed to a surprising 5-2 aggregate loss against Bodo/Glimt.

After already being stunned 1-3 away from home, San Siro was silenced by goals from Jens Petter Hauge and Haakon Evjen, continuing the Norwegian side's fairytale run.

Dortmund faced a harder defeat as it gave up a 2-0 first-leg advantage to lose 4-3 on aggregate to Atalanta, with Lazar Samardzic scoring a pressure penalty in the eighth minute of added time.

With the 16 teams set, the knockout-stage draw set up some mouth-watering clashes. In a repeat of the Club World Cup final, PSG takes on Chelsea, while Spanish giants Barcelona and Atletico face English sides Newcastle United and Tottenham Hotspur, respectively. But perhaps the marquee tie will be between Manchester City and Real Madrid, who will face off in the knockouts for the fifth season running and for the 17th time in total by the end of the two legs.

Premier League

There was another twist in the

FOR MORE
STORIES

UEFA Champions League round of 16 matchups

Galatasaray vs Liverpool
Newcastle United vs Barcelona
Atletico Madrid vs Tottenham Hotspur
Atalanta vs Bayern Munich
Bayer Leverkusen vs Arsenal
PSG vs Chelsea
Bodo/Glimt vs Sporting
Real Madrid vs Manchester City