Making it count: After India chose to bat in New Chandigarh, K. L. Rahul survived an early scare when Afghanistan declined to review a nick behind off Ziaur Rahman with the batter on 16. The missed chance proved costly. In the 61st over, Rahul flicked a full delivery off his pads for a single to complete a hard-earned century, his 12th in Test cricket. R. V. MOORTHY

Leading from the front: If Rahul's century was forged through patience against the moving ball, Gill's imperious 11th Test hundred came against a tiring attack. Yet there was nothing routine about it. He drove crisply through the off side, cut with trademark precision, and raced to three figures with 11 fours and a six. The milestone arrived moments before stumps with a flick to square leg off Mohammad Saleem.
