platforms like BookMyShow and District (above) by mimicking their logos, colour schemes, and even the UI layouts to create a platform identical enough to dismiss any hint of suspicion.

"These websites were actually being created using phishing kits.

These are basically like a pre-made source code that will be just handed over to you, and then all you need to do is deploy it. The moment you do that on your server, you are a threat actor. That is, you are ready to scam people. It's kind of difficult to say if it is an organised group of people doing it or not, but at times, it may be possible for one group to create hundreds and thousands of sites using the kit. We don't have the data on where they're operating from. For the domains are registered on different ISPs (Internet Service Providers). But more often than not, we see that the infrastructure that is being used is Chinese," Sourajeet explains.

Some of the domains that were designed between March and April 2026 to dupe buyers are as follows:

bookmy-show.com,
book-myshow.com,
thebookmyshow.in,
bookmyshow-ipl-ticket.com,
bookmyshowticket.com,
bookmyiplticket.com,
bookm-show.shop, and bookmyticket.sbs.

The official URL for the popular ticket-booking platform, meanwhile, is in.bookmyshow.com.

BookMyShow says its aware of the problem at hand.

"We have brought instances of unauthorised entities misrepresenting themselves as official ticketing channels to the attention of the relevant authorities and remain committed to supporting efforts that help protect consumers from fraudulent activity," a spokesperson affiliated with the group told Sportstar.

BookMyShow additionally claimed it had initiated drives to make buyers more aware. "Consumer safety remains a priority for us and, as the official ticketing partner for select teams during IPL 2026, we regularly shared advisories and information on safeguards through our official platforms, urging customers to exercise caution and avoid unauthorised ticketing sources, which may lead to fraudulent transactions."

One can only wish the problems ended here. When CloudSEK researchers managed to access the administrative panel of one of these fake domains, it wasn't a pretty sight. Personal details of targets—including names, phone numbers, email addresses, and bank and UPI details—were all perched
