

» WORLD VIEW OF THE FORTNIGHT

« This is becoming more real, and to be honest, it is a bit scary. I didn't expect it to happen so quickly. – Switzerland's Audrey Werro after beating Olympic champion Keely Hodgkinson in the 800m at the Stockholm Diamond League »

« This seems like the perfect way to end it, by becoming undisputed champion again in our national stadium, which has such a special place in Irish hearts. – Irish boxing great and Olympic champion Katie Taylor who plans to end her career at Dublin's Croke Park on September 5 »

40

Australia's Kurtis Marschall pulled off a stunning upset by defeating Olympic champion Armand Duplantis, snapping the Swede's 40-meet winning streak. Marschall secured victory with a successful clearance of 5.90m on his third attempt, while Duplantis, chasing his own world record of 6.31m, managed only 5.80m.

20%

Wimbledon has announced a 20 per cent increase for this year's championships, with the men's and women's singles champions set to receive a record 3.6 million pounds (Rs. 41.9 crore) each. The total prize fund will rise to 64.2 million pounds (Rs. 748 crore). The increase comes after players started to demand that Grand Slam tournaments allocate a greater share of their revenues to the competitors.

INTO THE RECORD BOOKS

USA's Ja'Kobe Tharp broke the men's 110m hurdles world record after crossing the tape in 12.75 seconds during the NCAA Outdoor Championships heats in Eugene, Oregon while representing Auburn's men's track and field team. He beat the record set by USA's Aries Merritt, who had clocked 12.80s nearly 14 years ago. The 20-year-old college student took some time to get into his stride. He managed to take the lead around the third hurdle, pushing for a victory and setting a new world record. GETTY IMAGES