Captain marvel: Argentina captain Diego Maradona holds aloft the World Cup trophy after being hoisted by teammates following victory over West Germany in the final in Mexico. Maradona was named Player of the Tournament after leading a heavily criticised Argentina side — one that had struggled to qualify — to ultimate glory. AFP

Chaos and class: Maradona scored twice — two distinctly different goals — in the quarterfinal win over England. For the first, he punched the ball into the net past England goalkeeper Peter Shilton and later dubbed it the 'Hand of God'. For the second, he picked up the ball near the halfway line, dribbled past five England defenders and slotted home what would become the 'Goal of the Century' (in pic). AFP
