

« It's gruelling. They changed the rules now. I didn't know some of the rules. So apparently if you miss a test outside of your window, it still counts as missed – Serena Williams on the drug test rules that force tennis stars to declare their location to doping officials »

« "I'm not planning to end it. If I have it the way I want, I would love another 10 years – U.S. sprint star Noah Lyles on retirement after the 2028 LA Olympics »

23.55

American swimmer Gretchen Walsh broke the women's 50m freestyle world record just nine days after Kate Douglass had set a new mark. Walsh clocked 23.55 seconds at the Sette Colli meet in Rome, shaving 0.04 seconds off the record Douglass set in Indianapolis. Douglass is not only Walsh's training partner but was also her teammate at the University of Virginia. Meanwhile, Dutch swimmer Marrit Steenbergen set a new women's 100m freestyle world record. She clocked 51.68 seconds, eclipsing the 51.71 that Sweden's Sarah Sjöström had posted at the 2017 World Championships in Budapest.

2nd

India's Kidambi Srikanth ended his impressive run with a runner-up finish at the US Open Super 300 badminton tournament after going down fighting in three games to Chinese Taipei's Su Li-yang in the men's singles final. Srikanth lost 15-21, 21-16, 9-21 in a physical battle that lasted just over an hour. The 33-year-old also finished runner-up at the Malaysia Masters Super 500 and the Syed Modi International Super 300 last year.

CHAMPION STUFF

At the Paris Diamond League, Trayvon Bromell (left) stormed to victory in 9.91 seconds in the men's 100m, defeating Noah Lyles. U.S. teammate and reigning Olympic champion Lyles suffered a disastrous start and could not make up the difference to Bromell, a two-time world bronze medallist. In the women's 800m, Switzerland's Audrey Werro (right) continued her dominant form as she scorched to another victory, setting a Diamond League record of 1:53:80s. Her time was the third-fastest ever run, as she edged closer to the oldest standing outdoor track world record in athletics, the 1:53.28 set by Jarmila Kratochvilova of the then-Czechoslovakia in 1983. AFP