

» FROM THE
WORLD OF FOOTBALL

Lost opportunity: A gripping draw between Everton and Manchester City handed Arsenal a crucial edge at the business end of the Premier League. AFP

SHIFTING TIDES

FOR MORE STORIES

Arsenal have regained the upper hand after Manchester City's slip in the Premier League, while Barcelona edge closer in La Liga amid a series of momentum shifts across Europe.

Rajdeep Saha

rajdeep.saha@thehindu.co.in

During Matchweek 33 of the Premier League, Manchester City wrested control of the title race from Arsenal after condemning the Gunners to a 2-1 loss. But two weeks on, Mikel Arteta and Co. have their hands back on the steering wheel.

It was Everton that handed the advantage to the North London outfit after the Toffees held Pep Guardiola's men to a thrilling 3-3 draw. With City dropping points, Arsenal sits atop with 76 points from 35 matches, five ahead of Guardiola and Co., who have played a game less.

Jeremy Doku struck an impactful brace, the second coming right at the end, prompting a mellow celebration from Guardiola. The Spaniard was well aware of the implications had his side failed to eke out a point.

Doku opened the scoring in the 43rd minute with a delectable curling effort off his left boot from