

WEST GERMANY

1974

19th

Total class: Dutch forward Johan Cruyff scores his team's second goal against Brazil in their World Cup semifinal in Dortmund, West Germany. AP

20th

Revolution without reward: While this tournament witnessed the peak of the Netherlands' 'Total Football' — a style that has influenced the game well into the 21st century — the Dutch and their talisman, Johan Cruyff, never achieved coronation on the global stage. Instead, it was West Germany, led by Franz Beckenbauer (second from right) playing as the libero (free defender), which won the title beating the Netherlands 2-1 in the final. AP

