It was a frustrating week for Real Madrid after Xabi Alonso's men played out a goalless draw against Rayo Vallecano.

The result became even more frustrating for Real because defending champion and arch-rival Barcelona beat Celta Vigo 4-2, with Robert Lewandowski scoring a hat-trick and Lamine Yamal and Frankie de Jong chipping in with one each. The evening almost turned out to be perfect for Hansi Flick's men but finished on an irritating note as Frenkie de Jong saw a red card in the fifth minute of second-half stoppage time. Atletico Madrid got the job done with a 3-1 win against Levante courtesy of an Antoine Griezmann brace and an own goal by Adrian de la Fuente.

It was contrasting fortunes for the two Basque clubs: Athletic Bilbao claimed three points with a 1-0 win against promoted Oviedo, while Real Sociedad played out a 1-1 draw with Elche. Villarreal beat Espanyol 2-0 to notch its third consecutive win and maintain a Champions League spot.

At the end of matchday 12, Real Madrid (31) leads the standings. Barcelona (28) is second, with Villarreal (26) and Atletico Madrid (25) in third and fourth.

side from winning its 17th consecutive match in all competitions. Luis Diaz's goal put Bayern ahead, but Berlin mounted a comeback courtesy of a brace by Danilho Doekhi.

With a loss in sight, Harry Kane turned saviour for his team with a 90th-minute equaliser.

Elsewhere, Borussia Dortmund and Hamburger SV played out a 1-1 draw, while RB Leipzig suffered a shock 1-3 loss against Hoffenheim.

VfB Stuttgart played a five-goal thriller against Augsburg, winning 3-2. It was a fun outing for Bayer Leverkusen as it thrashed Heidenheim 6-0, including braces from Patrik Schick and Ibrahim Maza.

At the end of matchday 10, Bayern (28) leads the table, with RB Leipzig (22) second. Dortmund and Stuttgart — both on 21 points — occupy third
