Amanjot Kaur

Age: 25

From: Mohali, Punjab

After alternating between Punjab and Chandigarh in domestic cricket, Amanjot made her India debut in early 2023. However, a back stress fracture next year ruled her out for six months. Following rehab, she returned to form in domestic cricket and earned a national recall after standout performances for Mumbai Indians in WPL 2025.

WC25: Often coming in to bat under pressure, she kept her composure and played some crucial knocks, particularly against Australia in the semifinal. With the ball too, she chipped in with six wickets in the tournament. Above all, she's been outstanding in the field, and took a brilliant catch to dismiss the dangerous Laura Wolvaardt in the final.

146 runs in 7 innings (HS: 57; Avg: 36.50; SR: 83.90); 6 wickets in 7 innings (BBI: 2/68; Avg: 45.66; Econ: 6.54)

Kranti Goud

Age: 22

From: Ghuwara, Madhya Pradesh

Until 2017, a young Kranti – who quit studies after Class 8 – would play local tournaments with boys. She later joined an academy in Chhatarpur, juggling training with travel from home as she began representing Madhya Pradesh in age-level tournaments. A four-wicket haul against Bengal in the Women's Senior One Day Trophy 2024 final and a strong maiden WPL season with UP Warriorz earned her a spot in the national team.

WC25: In Renuka's absence, Kranti handled the responsibility of being the lead pace bowler with maturity. The youngster from Madhya Pradesh finished her World Cup campaign with nine wickets.

9 wickets in 8 innings (BBI: 3/20; Avg: 40.11; Econ: 5.73)

Uma Chetry

Age: 23

From: Bokakhat, Assam

The youngest of five siblings, Uma started playing cricket with a plastic bat and ball bought at a Durga Puja pandal. From walking 10 km every day to the local ground in slippers to braving floods, Uma's perseverance paid off when she made her international debut in 2024.

WC25: The youngster from Assam was called up to the squad ahead of the tournament as an injury replacement for Yastika Bhatia. Against New Zealand, she got some time in the middle after Richa sustained an injury. Uma was also handed her ODI debut in India's final league-stage fixture against Bangladesh.
