New Zealand secured the five-match T20I series against Pakistan after winning the fourth fixture. The Kiwis posted 220 for six, courtesy of Finn Allen's 20-ball fifty and major contributions from Tim Seifert and Michael Bracewell. The visitor was bundled out for 105, handing New Zealand a 115-run victory. The host, which fielded a depleted side, triumphed in the first two matches but stumbled in the third — Hasan Nawaz smashed the fastest T20I hundred for Pakistan to help chase down the 204 target with nine wickets and 24 balls remaining.
