

On a spicy Eden pitch built, seamers ruled and India teetered at 159 for 7. Kohli, calm amid the storm, shifted gears late on Day 5 — piercing gaps with crisp drives and audacious flicks. His 104 off 119 turned pressure into thrill. By stumps, Sri Lanka was clinging on at 75 for 7 in a chase of 231, desperate for darkness. The match ended in a draw. K. R. DEEPAK

Don't let the score mislead you — this was spin domination at its finest. On a pitch tearing up by Day 3, with India six down and trailing, Kohli took charge. He swept from the rough, drove against the turn, and lofted with intent. By the end, England had no answers. India won by an innings and 36 runs. K. R. DEEPAK

Before the 36-run collapse in Adelaide etched itself into history, India had edged ahead — and Kohli was central to that. Under pink skies and tricky bounce, he reined in his strokes, trusted his eye, and built a 123-ball half-century with precision and poise. At 188/3, India looked set — until Kohli's run-out turned the tide and eventually handed Australia an eight-wicket win. GETTY IMAGES
