Gujarat Titans' drive for a third IPL final appearance in four years has been led by its opening pair – Shubman Gill and B. Sai Sudharsan. While Gill has been a reliable 400-run cornerstone for the team since its inception, Sudharsan's emergence has elevated the GT opening partnership to a position of dominance this season. Despite GT missing out on the Playoffs last year, Sudharsan enjoyed a breakthrough campaign, scoring 527 runs at an average of 47.91. This season, he has taken his game up a notch by adopting a more aggressive approach, as reflected in his improved strike rate of 157.

Sudharsan showcased why he is regarded as one of the country's finest young batters with an unbeaten century – his first of the season and second overall – which helped the Titans chase down 200 against Delhi Capitals with ease, securing a 10-wicket victory that confirmed its place in the top four.

Of Sudharsan's 617 runs this season, nearly 55 per cent have come through the onside. However, against the Capitals, he made full use of the width available, amassing 28 runs with well-placed cut shots. Seven of his 12 boundaries also came behind square on the offside.

His ability to find gaps effortlessly, highlighted by a league-high 68 fours, is complemented by his excellent strike rotation. The Tamil Nadu batsman ranks second and third in the league for singles and doubles respectively this season.

With an improvement in his six-hitting, alongside his steady, compact technique, Sudharsan looks poised to become the next all-format batter for the national team as it enters a period of transition.
