

Titans triumph: Rain delays, a crucial no-ball, and a run-out fumble — in a rollercoaster of drama at Wankhede Stadium, the Titans stunned Mumbai to claim a classic victory. EMMANUAL YOGINI proceedings, conflicting reports were coming in as to what would be the last time for the fixture to be called off. Finally, when play resumed just before 12:30 in the morning with just one out of the two overs remaining to be bowled, Mumbai Indians, who were a bit tardy in bowling their overs, were also penalised with one less fielder beyond the 30-metre circle. That was a bit harsh, for if the game had not been interrupted by rain, they could have made up time in the 19th over and so had all five fielders outside the circle for the final over.

This penalty clause is very good, but perhaps needs a tweak in case a similar interruption happens. For example, if a team is a minute or so behind the required time and there are still six overs remaining, then the rains come in, play might restart with just one over left. This happened in the Mumbai vs Gujarat game. The penalty of having one less fielder is a stiff punishment in such cases. The bowling team had ample overs to make up for being a minute or so short of the required time. This penalty can make the difference between winning and losing. Hopefully, better cricketing minds than mine will come up with a solution or a reason to continue with the current penalty clause.

I end with sincere thanks to all the Indians all over the world who, despite differences — political, linguistic, ethnic or otherwise — have stood up wholeheartedly for our beloved motherland.

Jai Hind.

No praise can be too high for the women and men from the armed forces who put their lives on the line for India.
