

it secure the narrow win.

Barcelona would have thought it had qualified for the final four when it thrashed Borussia Dortmund 4-0 in the first leg. But the Yellow-and-Black tried a comeback in the return leg, falling short by two goals in the end.

Meanwhile, late comebacks ruled the roost in the other quarterfinal when Inter Milan staved off Bayern Munich to enter its second semifinal in three years. With a 2-1 lead in the first leg, Inter went behind at home (2-2 on aggregate) in the second leg when Harry Kane found the net in the second half.

Inter soaked up the pressure, rode on the raucous home support to score twice in three minutes, through Lautaro Martinez and Benjamin Pavard, to complete the comeback. The Italians will face Barcelona for a spot in the final.

An English Remontada

The UEFA Europa League

quarterfinals were even more dramatic, with Manchester United securing a late 5-4 win over Lyon while an outnumbered Bodo/Glimt beat Lazio 3-2 on penalties.

United, going into the second leg with a 2-2 score, was flying through Manuel Ugarte and Diogo Dalot's strikes in the first half before Corentin Tolisso and Nicolas Tagliafico pulled the game back in balance, forcing extra time.

Over 73,000 fans at Old Trafford were stunned to silence when Rayan Cherki and Alexandre Lacazette scored two more for the French side. But United scored three in the last seven minutes — through Bruno Fernandes, Kobbie Mainoo and Harry Maguire — to turn the match on its head.

United will face Athletic Bilbao, which beat Rangers 2-0 over two legs, while Bodo/Glimt will lock horns with Tottenham Hotspur, which rode on Dominic Solanke's penalty to eliminate 2021-22 champion Eintracht Frankfurt.

Last laugh: Manchester United players celebrate after Harry Maguire (left) scored the winner against Lyon.

AP

In the UEFA Europa Conference League, Real Betis brushed aside Polish top-division champion Jagiellonia Białystok to set up a semifinal against Fiorentina, the 2022-23 runner-up. The Serie A side was rattled by Slovenian club Celje, which restored parity through Aljosa Matko and Klemen Nemanic, but Moise Kean saved Fiorentina's blushes with a winner in the 67th minute.

Chelsea set up the other semifinal against Swedish club Djurgarden, after getting the better of Legia Warsaw 4-2 on aggregate. Djurgarden, on the other hand, sailed into the semis with a 5-2 aggregate win over Austrian side SK Rapid Wien.

(All results updated as of April 21)