Liverpool is just a win away from a commanding title win in the Premier League.

Liverpool had the opportunity to secure its first Premier League title since the 2019–20 season on April 20 itself, provided it beat Leicester City and Arsenal lost to Ipswich Town. Though the first condition was fulfilled, a win for the Gunners away from home meant the Reds, the current league leaders, would now have to wait a bit longer for their coronation.

Arne Slot's men were forced to work hard and needed Trent Alexander-Arnold to come off the bench and score the winner. The right-back, criticised for reportedly leaving his boyhood club for Real Madrid at the end of the season, ripped his shirt off in a wild celebration in front of the Liverpool fans.

The result also confirmed Leicester's relegation to the Championship, its second in three years.

Arsenal, meanwhile, thrashed Ipswich 4-0 with two goals from Leandro Trossard and one each from Gabriel Martinelli and Ethan Nwaneri.

Liverpool needs just a win in its next game against Tottenham Hotspur to be crowned champion, but it could happen earlier if Arsenal loses at home to Crystal Palace in midweek.

Newcastle United (3rd), Manchester City (4th) and Chelsea (5th) make up the rest of the top five, with Aston Villa and Nottingham Forest also in contention for Champions League spots.
