

Consistent show: Oscar Piastri has won three of the five Grands Prix so far this season. He leads by 10 points. GETTY IMAGES

DRONES, DJS, AND DRAMA: SAUDI GP DELIVERS A NEW-AGE RACING CARNIVAL

F1's Saudi Arabian GP mixed on-track tension with off-track spectacle as Jeddah served up a weekend built for fans and fast cars.

Anish Pathiyil

anish.p@thehindu.co.in

Oscar Piastri left the shores of his native land after the season-opening Australian Grand Prix, still unable to break the Albert Park curse – no Aussie driver has scored a podium at his home race.

A ninth-place finish gave him just two points, not the best of starts against fellow Drivers' Championship hopefuls Lando Norris and Max Verstappen.

In the five weeks since, the young driver from Down Under has won three out of four races, including a clinical victory at the Saudi Arabian Grand Prix, which made him the first Aussie to lead the championship since Mark Webber did at the Japan