

A star-studded disappointment:

Lionel Messi, Neymar and Kylian Mbappe failed to win the UCL at PSG.

when Dembele pressed him incessantly, forcing errors in build-up play. That combined with a swarm of five players in the opposition half — Kvaratskhelia, Doue, Nuno Mendes, Achraf Hakimi and Fabian Ruiz — like wolves on the prowl, Inter simply had no answers.

Meanwhile, two small blocks — Vitinha and João Neves (central midfield), and Marquinhos and Willian Pacho — were stationed to contain counter-attacks.

The result: An inferno in Munich with Inter as the target. PSG had 23 attempts to Inter's eight and more than double the attacks (46 v 22).

After a decade of turmoil, PSG's magnum opus arrived, not just through individual brilliance but also the vision of a manager who dared to trade stardust for steel.

So, what does it take to cruise a car to victory? PSG now has the answer.
