

RONALDO A PLAYABLE CHARACTER IN FATAL FURY: CITY OF THE WOLVES

Playing as Cristiano Ronaldo has often been the favourite part of every FIFA or eFootball player – the side-steps, the dribbles and finally, the signature ‘SIUUU’ celebration. But the Portugal legend has now entered uncharted territory, becoming a playable character in the Japanese fighting game Fatal Fury: City of the Wolves.

Originally released in 1991, Fatal Fury had its last instalment, Mark of the Wolves, in 1999. The latest edition, City of the Wolves, is scheduled for release on April 24 and will be one of the titles at the Esports World Cup 2025.

Ronaldo will feature in his iconic No. 7 jersey for Portugal’s national team and will be voiced by dubbing artist Juan Felipe Sierra, best known for voicing Shoto Todoroki in Spanish, one of the protagonists of the manga series My Hero Academia.

ESPORTS MAKING INROADS IN INDIA

Esports continues to make inroads into traditional sporting tournaments, with it now being a demonstration sport at the 2025 Khelo India Youth Games, set to be played in Patna and New Delhi.

The tournament, set to be played between May 4 and 15, will have 28 disciplines (27 competitive and one demonstrative). Esports will feature in the Games for the first time but the titles are yet to be announced.

Meanwhile, the Tamil Nadu Government announced that the state will host the Chennai Esports Global Championship (CeGC) later this year. The CeGC will be a multi-title esports competition featuring top teams from around the world.

WHO AM I?

I started my esports journey as a CS:GO pro before switching to Valorant. In 2023, I was one of only two Indian players to compete in the prestigious VCT Pacific League. The answer will be revealed in the next issue.
