Enduring excellence: England's all-time leading run-scorer raised his 41st Test hundred on day two of the Sydney finale, his fourth Ashes tour of Australia. Joe Root's 160 carried England to 384 all out. For all his brilliance, an Ashes series win here still eludes him, as does consistency in results. GETTY IMAGES

Late collapse: Australia's bowlers struck at key moments on day two in Sydney, led by Michael Neser's incisive 4 for 60. His standout dismissal was England centurion Joe Root, who chipped a leading edge back to a diving Neser in his follow-through, triggering a late collapse in which England lost four wickets for nine runs.
