

» INTERVIEW

« If you can do it in the WPL, you can do it anywhere »

LISA KEIGHTLEY

Lavanya Lakshmi Narayanan

lavanya.ln@thehindu.co.in

Lisa Keightley's coaching career has quietly mirrored and shaped the modern rise of women's cricket, spanning national teams, franchise leagues and development systems across continents.

Since retiring from international cricket in 2005, the former Australia batter has spent more than two decades in coaching. She began at New South Wales, guiding the side to back-to-back Women's National Cricket League titles, before becoming head coach of the Australian women's team in 2007, the first woman to hold the role.

In 2011, Keightley moved to England to lead the Women's Academy, also consulting with Wiltshire Cricket and the ECB. That pathway work eventually led to her appointment as England women's head coach from 2019 to 2022. Despite a pandemic-disrupted tenure, England reached the 2022 ODI World Cup final and the semifinals of the 2020 T20 World Cup and the 2022 Commonwealth Games, while several young players were fast-tracked into