Drought ends: Joe Root finally exorcised his Australian demons, striking a hard-earned century to keep England afloat on a gripping opening day of the second Ashes Test in Brisbane. Under the Brisbane lights, Root guided a delicate tickle off Scott Boland for four to bring up three figures in Australia at the 30th attempt. The landmark also made him only the second England batter to score a century on the opening day of a Brisbane Test, after Maurice Leyland's 126 exactly 89 years ago. GETTY IMAGES

Wickets and milestones: Mitchell Starc ripped through England, bowling it out for 334 with a blistering 6-75 to finish on 420 Test wickets, overtaking Wasim Akram on the all-time left-arm fast bowlers list. Among all left-arm bowlers, only Rangana Herath (433) is ahead of Starc. GETTY IMAGES

Two acts, one Starc: Starc joined elite Ashes company with a first-innings five-for and a rousing 77 in the second, a feat last managed by Mitchell Johnson in Perth, 2013. Australia surged to 511 and a decisive lead. GETTY IMAGES
