Signs of a resurgence

Wins against Manchester City and Arsenal mark Manchester United's first real upward turn in over a year.

Manchester United has had few moments to celebrate in the last 15 months, but under interim manager Michael Carrick, the tide appears to be turning.

On consecutive matchdays, United beat rivals Manchester City (2-0, above) and Arsenal (3-2), which included its first win at the Emirates since 2017, thanks to Matheus Cunha's late winner.

The wins helped United climb to fourth in the standings, above Chelsea and defending champion Liverpool.

Chelsea, a point short of United, is breathing down its neck with wins over Brentford and Crystal Palace, while Liverpool is yet to win a Premier League game this year.

City (second) and Aston Villa (third) remain level on points (46), while Arsenal leads the standings with 50 points after 23 rounds.

La Liga

Though Barcelona stumbled against Real Sociedad (1-2), it made amends in style, with Lamine Yamal hitting a stylish scissor kick in a 3-0 win over Real Oviedo. The win brought the Catalans back on top of La Liga with 52 points.

Meanwhile, Real Madrid manager Alvaro Arbeloa looks to have ignited a fresh spark in his players after a shock exit from the Copa del Rey. With consecutive wins in the league, it is just a point short of its arch-rival.

Atletico Madrid's five draws — the most among the top five — keep it eight points adrift of the top, while Villarreal's back-to-back losses place it fourth with 41 points.

Bundesliga

Bayern Munich's unbeaten run in the league finally snapped after struggling FC Augsburg came back from a goal down to slay the German giant.

Goals from Arthur Chaves and Han-Noah Massengo helped Augsburg secure its first win against Bayern in 11 years.

Despite the loss, the Bavarians have a comfortable eight-point lead at the top of the table, with second-placed Borussia Dortmund chipping three points off the gap after a 3-0 win against Union Berlin.

Serie A

Inter Milan made it three wins in three after overcoming an initial hiccup to thrash Pisa 6-2, maintaining its grasp on the top spot. To make the victory sweeter, its lead extended to five points after AC Milan (47) and Roma (43), second and third respectively, played out a 1-1 draw.

Meanwhile, defending champion Napoli's dip in form continued as it was blanked 0-3 by Juventus, with Jonathan David, Kenan Yildiz and Filip Kostic getting on the scoresheet.

The win propelled Juventus to fifth in the standings with 42 points, one behind Napoli in fourth.

Ligue 1

RC Lens' seven-week reign at the top came to an end as it succumbed to a 1-3 loss against Olympique de Marseille. The clash saw Marseille debutant teenager Ethan Nwaneri score a day after signing on loan from Arsenal.

Reigning champion Paris Saint-Germain made the result count as it relied on Bradley Barcola's 79th-minute strike to labour past relegation-battling Auxerre. The win helped Luis Enrique's men secure a two-point lead at the top, with 15 games left in the season.
