The bitter aftertaste of a first-round exit at the Paris 2024 Olympics became the crucible in which Jaismine Lamboria's true mettle was forged. Parveen Hooda's 22-month suspension for whereabouts failures, handed down by the World Anti-Doping Agency just ahead of the Games, opened a door for Jaismine.

It also forced a decisive shift from the 60kg lightweight division to 57kg featherweight, a move that would soon redefine her career.

Any sense of reprieve, however, was fleeting. At the Olympics, Jaismine ran into 2019 world champion and Tokyo 2020 silver medallist Nesthy Petecio of the Philippines and was comprehensively outboxed. Petecio would go on to claim bronze. Jaismine returned

A close-up photograph of Jaismine Lamboria in a boxing ring. She is wearing a blue protective headgear with the word "STING" in white capital letters. She is also wearing blue boxing gloves and a blue and white striped singlet. Her mouth is open in a shout or yell, and her right arm is extended forward. The background is a blurred view of the boxing ring with red and white ropes.
