

47.78

For 40 years, no woman had dipped under 48 seconds in the 400m. In 2025, the barrier was broken twice at the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo. USA's Sydney McLaughlin-Levrone won gold with a stunning 47.78s, while Dominican Republic's Marileidy Paulino claimed silver in 47.98s. The world record still belongs to Germany's Marita Koch (47.60).

119

Crystal Palace ended a 119-year wait for a major trophy by winning the FA Cup after defeating Manchester City 1-0 in the final. The Eagles ended their title drought thanks to a 16th-minute goal from English midfielder Eberechi Eze, while Palace goalkeeper Dean Henderson created another defining moment by saving a first-half penalty from Omar Marmoush.

64

Shunsuke Togami and Hiroto Shinozuka ended Japan's 64-year wait for a men's doubles title at the Table Tennis World Championships after defeating Chinese Taipei's Kao Cheng-jui and Lin Yun-ju. Nobuya Hoshino and Koji Kimura were the last Japanese men's doubles world champions, in 1961.

90.23

Neeraj Chopra breached the elusive 90m barrier with his third throw in the men's javelin final at the Doha Diamond League 2025. He became only the third Asian and the 25th athlete overall to achieve the feat. However, the throw was only good enough for silver as Germany's Julian Weber produced a 91.06m effort to take gold.

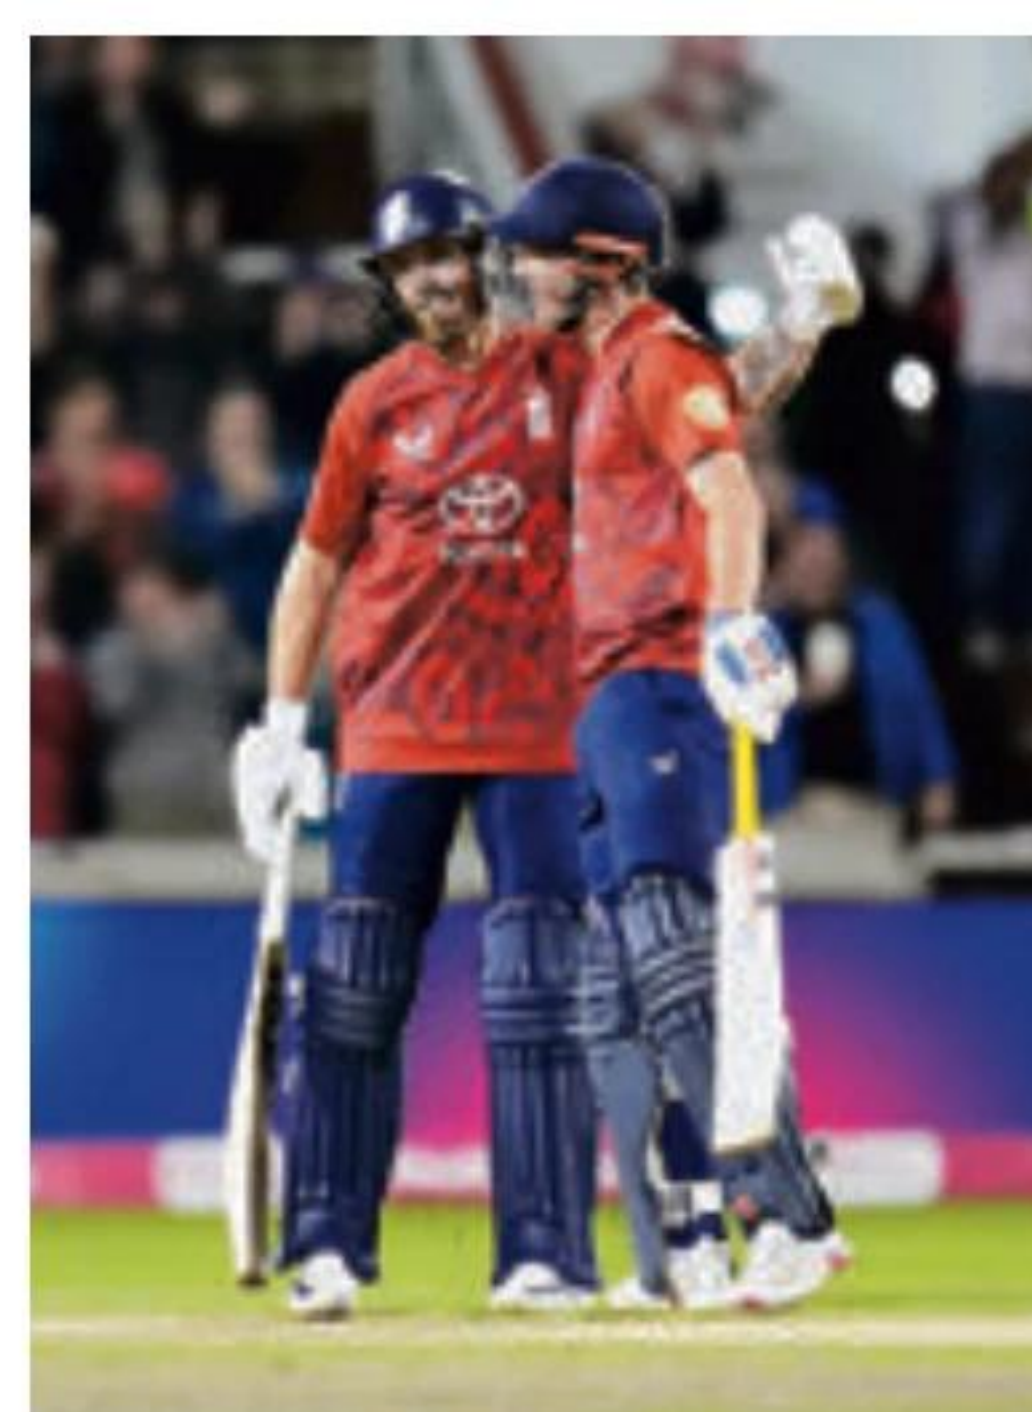

239

German driver Nico Hulkenberg ended an unwanted streak by securing his first Formula One podium at the 2025 British Grand Prix after 239 races. Driving for Kick Sauber, the 38-year-old capitalised on mixed conditions to climb from 19th to third at Silverstone.

111

Manchester City striker Erling Haaland became the fastest player to score 100 Premier League goals during a thrilling 5-4 win over Fulham at Craven Cottage. The Norwegian broke Alan Shearer's record of 124 games to reach the milestone. Haaland has scored 28 more league goals than any other player since his debut in August 2022.

304

England became the first team to register a 300-plus total in T20 internationals during the second match of its series against South Africa in Manchester. Phil Salt (left) smashed an unbeaten 141 off 60 balls, while Jos Buttler struck 83 off just 30 deliveries, with the pair adding 126 for the opening stand inside eight overs.
