

Vihaan Malhotra

The fact that Royal Challengers Bengaluru had signed Vihaan Malhotra long before the U-19 World Cup is telling of the 19-year-old's potential. The Punjab batter had impressed in the Youth Tests against England last year, scoring 277 runs at an average of 60, including a century and two fifties. He then switched seamlessly into 50-over mode as India geared up for the World Cup. Malhotra became the side's first centurion of the tournament, striking an unbeaten 109 in India's 204-run win over Zimbabwe in the Super Six stage.

Abhigyan Kundu

Seventeen-year-old Abhigyan Kundu was among the most hyped youngsters heading into the T20 World Cup. The Mumbai batter had scored a stunning double hundred against Malaysia in the preceding Asia Cup, becoming the first Indian and only the second batter worldwide to do so in Youth ODIs. Kundu made steady contributions in the middle order throughout the tournament, finishing as India's third-highest run-getter with 239 runs. Behind the stumps, he also effected 11 dismissals as the team's wicketkeeper.

R. S. Ambrish

Touted as the next Hardik Pandya, R. S. Ambrish enjoyed a stellar U-19 World Cup campaign, taking 11 wickets in seven matches. He returned impressive figures consistently, including a four-wicket haul against New Zealand that earned him the Player of the Match award. The 18-year-old bowls right-arm medium pace and operates mainly with the new ball, though he can also be used as a first or second change option. A reliable middle-order batter as well, he had minimal opportunities to make an impact with the bat in the recently concluded tournament. The southpaw made his First-Class debut for Tamil Nadu this season and is expected to be in the reckoning for more senior call-ups after his World Cup exploits.

Kanishk Chouhan

Kanishk Chouhan was the glue that held India's explosive batting unit and incisive bowling attack together with his all-round prowess. The off-spinner picked up seven wickets during the World Cup at an economy rate of 4.52. With the bat, he aggregated 113 runs from number eight at a healthy strike rate of 116.49. The 19-year-old's 20-ball 37 in the final helped India cross the 400-run mark against England. The Royal Challengers Bengaluru spinner was also inducted into the Team of the Tournament for his superlative performance.

Khilan Patel

Khilan Patel enjoyed a decent campaign at the ICC Men's U-19 World Cup, taking nine wickets over the course of the tournament. The Gujarat-born all-rounder's best performance came against Pakistan, when he claimed a three-wicket haul. The slow left-arm orthodox bowler is adept at holding one end up through the middle overs with his accuracy. He also showcased his hitting ability in the lower-middle order with a quickfire 12-ball 30 against Zimbabwe.
