

#35

HEX GRID

This short program produces a tessellated image of a hexagonal grid, similar to chicken wire. It shows that you don't need a lot of code to make something interesting. A slightly more complicated variation of this program is Project 65, "Shining Carpet."

Note that this program uses raw strings, which prefix the opening quote with a lowercase `r` so that the backslashes in the string aren't interpreted as escape characters.