

Code readability is more important than mindlessly following a “zero code smells” policy for your programs.