

TEST CRICKET IS

Sri Lankan spin-bowling great Muttiah Muralitharan talks at length about the future of Test cricket, why Bazball needs to adapt better, the fast bowling evolution in India, and more.

Shayan Acharya

shayan.acharya@thehindu.co.in

The interview is taking place on the 15th floor of the iconic Taj Mahal Palace Hotel in Mumbai, with the sun setting behind the historic arch of the Gateway of India, casting a pinkish hue over the entire presidential suite.

With a smile, Muttiah Muralitharan puts his phone on silent mode and adjusts his navy-blue checkered blazer. Having travelled from Colombo to receive the first-ever International Icon Award at the Sportstar Aces

Awards for his remarkable contribution to world cricket, the Sri Lankan spin legend doesn't shy away from acknowledging that 'Test cricket is dying'. As the conversation unfolds, he expresses the difficulty future players may face in aspiring to play 100 Tests.

Since he retired from all forms of the game in 2010, as the highest