

6} The number of bowlers who claimed six or more wickets in the first session on the opening day of a Test match. India's Mohd Siraj (6/15) now has the second-best bowling figures in Test cricket history for a bowler in the first session on the opening day of a Test match. England's Stuart Broad (8/15) in the 2015 Ashes Test in Nottingham tops this select group. However, Siraj's figures are the best by any such bowler in an away Test match. Incidentally, left-arm spinner Maninder Singh is the only other Indian bowler to claim a five-wicket haul before lunch on the opening day, which he did against Pakistan in Bengaluru on 13 March 1987.
