

24 } The number of bowlers who have taken 100 or more wickets for India in Test matches. Mohd Siraj, the latest entrant, reached this milestone during the Sydney Test match on January 5, 2025, when he dismissed Usman Khawaja in the second innings. With this accomplishment, Siraj became the 10th pace bowler to reach this significant landmark for India. However, although the milestone came in 36 Test matches, he still boasts the third-best strike rate of any Indian bowler in this regard, with only Jasprit Bumrah and Kapil Dev having a better bowling strike-rate when claiming their 100th Test wicket.

Note: The figures above are updated to the end of the innings when the bowler claimed his 100th Test wicket.

7 } The number of Indian bowlers who have claimed 32 or more wickets in a Test series. Jasprit Bumrah has recently joined this elite group. He is the second Indian paceman, after Kapil Dev, to achieve this milestone and the first to take this many wickets on an away tour. However, it is unfortunate that he is also the only Indian bowler to be part of a losing effort in such a series.
