The F1 fraternity endured yet another record-breaking season, during which competitiveness, on-track battles, and paddock drama scaled new heights. The year 2024 marked the return of McLaren as it ended a 26-year win-less drought to seal the Constructors' Championship.

Lando Norris and Oscar Piastri ensured the Woking-based team was a strong contender, especially after updates to its cars. With six wins, multiple podium finishes, and points every weekend, McLaren's consistency paid off as it leapfrogged Red Bull and kept Ferrari at bay to ascend to the throne.

While Ferrari witnessed a terrific comeback during the latter part of the season, Red Bull had to contend with poor performance and Sergio Perez's struggles.
