Daniel Ricciardo departed Racing Bulls, making way for Liam Lawson. The Kiwi garnered the attention of Red Bull at the right time, resulting in his promotion after only 11 F1 races. The finale in Abu Dhabi also saw 2025 driver Jack Doohan get his first race under his belt, replacing Alpine's Esteban Ocon, who moves to Haas.

Adrian Newey, the acclaimed British designer and the man behind much of Red Bull's success, revealed that he would be leaving the team after 18 years to start a new chapter with Aston Martin. Other significant announcements were always around the corner — erratic driver penalties, including one for swearing which Verstappen served, the reveal and subsequent changes to the 2026 F1 rules, and even the possible addition of an 11th team, Cadillac.
