

2006: It was only fitting that Australia's golden generation won the nation's first Champions Trophy title. Facing defending champion West Indies in the final in Mumbai, Ricky Ponting's side delivered a clinical bowling performance, restricting Brian Lara's team to just 138. During the chase, Shane Watson's composed fifty guided Australia to a comfortable victory. GETTY IMAGES

2009: Watson was the star once again, smashing back-to-back centuries in both the semifinal and final as Australia defended its title in dominant fashion. In the semifinal, Watson and Ricky Ponting shared a record 252-run partnership off 242 balls, then the highest for Australia in ODIs. In the summit clash at the Centurion, Watson remained unbeaten on 105 as Australia chased down New Zealand's 200. GETTY IMAGES
