Shapovalov completes giant-killing run with win over Ruud to clinch Dallas title

Canada's Denis Shapovalov completed a giant-killing run to the Dallas Open title, defeating Norway's fifth-ranked Casper Ruud 7-6 (5), 6-3 for his third career ATP crown.

Unseeded Shapovalov became only the fifth player since 2020 to knock out the three top seeds on the way to an ATP title and just the fourth player since 2009 to beat three top-10 rivals en route to a 250 or 500-level title.

Shapovalov ousted two home-soil favourites earlier, dispatching world No. 4 Taylor Fritz in the second round and eliminating ninth-ranked defending champion Tommy Paul in the semifinals.

The 500-level trophy was the biggest of Shapovalov's career, following victories in Stockholm in 2018 and last November in Belgrade. It also marks a triumphant comeback after battling injury since mid-2023.
