Bayern Munich survived a late comeback scare against Holstein Kiel but held onto its lead to win 4-3. Harry Kane scored on either side of half-time, while Jamal Musiala and Serge Gnabry chipped in to give the host a healthy cushion before the hour mark.

However, Finn Porath pulled one back, and Steven Skrzybski scored twice in stoppage time to pose a threat.

The following week, Kane brought his goal tally up to 21 in the league after converting twice from the spot in a 3-0 win against Werder Bremen. The results leave Bayern on top of the table with 54 points from 21 games.

Bayer Leverkusen played for half an hour with 10 men but managed to hold onto its lead and beat relegation-threatened Hoffenheim 3-1.

However, in its next fixture, Xabi Alonso equalled the late manager Udo Lattek's feat of 27 consecutive away games without defeat in Germany's top flight after being held to a frustrating 0-0 draw by VfL Wolfsburg. The defending champion is now eight points behind the leader, having played the same number of games.

Eintracht Frankfurt and RB Leipzig make up the top four, sitting third and fourth with 39 and 36 points, respectively.

Borussia Dortmund ended interim coach Mike Tullberg's short reign with a 2-1 win against Heidenheim, its first win in the league since December.

However, the new head coach Niko Kovac had a rough start to life in Dortmund after his side slumped to a 2-1 defeat against VfB Stuttgart.

With just 29 points in 21 games, the Yellow and Black are reeling in 11th in the table.

Leonardo Spinazzola's opener cancelled out by Angelino in stoppage time.

Antonio Conte's men wasted another opportunity to gain an advantage at the top as it played out yet another 1-1 draw against Udinese.

Scott McTominay scored his sixth league goal of the season with a pinpoint header, while Jurgen Ekkelenkamp equalised with a swerving long-range shot that deceived Napoli goalkeeper Alex Meret. Despite the draws, Napoli leads the standings with 55 points from 24 games.

On the other hand, reigning champion Inter Milan failed to capitalise on Napoli slipping up, dropping five points in its last two games.

Stefan de Vrij scored in stoppage time for Inter to play out a 1-1 draw
