

display from Atlético Madrid, but Diego Simeone's men did enough to clinch a 1-0 win against Getafe courtesy of a 69th-minute strike from Alexander Sorloth.

Athletic Bilbao played out a 1-1 draw against Alavés.

After matchday 17, Barcelona tops the table with 38 points. Atlético leapfrogged city rival Real Madrid to occupy second place. It also has 38 points, but Barca stays ahead courtesy of a better goal difference.

However, it should be noted that Atlético has played one match less than Barcelona. Real Madrid is third with 37 points, with Athletic in fourth with 33.

Serie A

Atalanta continued its bid to win its first-ever Scudetto after a 1-0 win against Cagliari. In a hard-fought match, Nicolò Zaniolo (left) was the only goalscorer.

Napoli stayed on Atalanta's heels with a 3-1 win against Udinese, but it was a disappointing week for Juventus, which drew 2-2 against last-placed Venezia.

It was a frustrating week for AC Milan after it played out a goalless draw against Monza, while Fiorentina went down 1-0 to Bologna. Fiorentina received some positive news after midfielder Edoardo Bove was discharged from hospital following a surgery to implant a heart starter device after his collapse during a Serie A match against Inter Milan.

After matchday 16, Atalanta tops the standings with 37 points, with Napoli in second place with 35 points. Inter and Fiorentina are third and fourth, with both teams on 31 points. Juventus is sixth with 28 points, and AC Milan is eighth with 23 points.

Bundesliga

German top-flight football saw an upset as Bayern Munich lost 2-1 to Mainz – Vincent Kompany's first league loss as Bayern manager. Lee Jae-sung scored a brace, and while Leroy Sané pulled one back for the Bavarians in the 87th minute, Mainz held on.

Defending champion Bayer Leverkusen cruised to a 2-0 win against Augsburg.

Borussia Dortmund played out a 1-1 draw against Hoffenheim, and RB Leipzig, who exited the Champions League, won 2-1

GETTY IMAGES