

Convincing win: PSG clinched a 3-1 win against Lyon with goals from Ousmane Dembélé (in blue), Vitinha and Goncalo Ramos. AFP against Eintracht Frankfurt.

However, the news that made the headlines came from the match between Union Berlin and VfL Bochum, which finished in a 1-1 draw. Bochum keeper Patrick Drewes (left) was hit by an object resembling a cigarette lighter when he was preparing to take a goal kick at 1-1 in added time.

The referee suspended the game and led both teams off the field. Nearly half an hour later, the game resumed, and Drewes was replaced by striker Philipp Hofmann. With about three minutes left, both teams passed the ball around while waiting for the referee to declare the game over. After matchday 14, Bayern top the standings with 33 points, with Leverkusen in second with 29.

Frankfurt and Leipzig are third and fourth, with both teams on 27.

Ligue 1

PSG's clash against Lyon was the headline fixture of matchday 15 of French top-flight football, and it did not disappoint, with PSG clinching a 3-1 win with goals from Ousmane Dembélé, Vitinha and Goncalo Ramos.

Marseille played out a 1-1 draw with LOSC Lille. Quentin Merlin put Marseille ahead in the 17th minute, and his goal was almost enough for the win, but Bafodé Diakité scored an 87th-minute equaliser to clinch a point for Lille. Monaco was held to a goalless draw by Reims.

Defending champion PSG marches towards the title as it stays atop with 37 points from 15 matches. Marseille and Monaco are second and third, with both on 30 points. Lille is fourth with 27 points.

League positions updated as of December 16, 2024.
