Italian giant Juventus remained unbeaten in the league after draws with AC Milan and Lecce but sits sixth in the standings, four points ahead of Milan in seventh.

La Liga

Barcelona squandered its lead at the top of the La Liga table after dropping points in consecutive matches against Celta Vigo and Las Palmas.

Hansi Flick's side was cruising to a win against Celta Vigo thanks to goals from Raphinha and Robert Lewandowski until 21-year-old Marc Casado was sent off in the 82nd minute. The home side then scored twice in two minutes to earn a point.

The following week, Barca was handed its first home defeat of the season as Las Palmas' Sandro Ramirez and Fábio Silva scored to win 2-1. After three consecutive games without a win, Barca still leads the standings with 34 points, one more than Real Madrid, which has a game in hand.

Jude Bellingham and Kylian Mbappe got on the scoresheet in two consecutive game weeks as Los Blancos breezed past Leganes and Getafe.

Despite being within touching distance of arch-rival Barcelona, Real will be wary of its growing injury list, which includes David Alaba, Eder Militao, Dani Carvajal, Vinicius Jr, Aurelien Tchouameni and Eduardo Camavinga.
